

ESTHER EDEN

ESTHER EDEN

Berlin based singer songwriter, Esther Eden has an extraordinary way of expressing her own stories in her songs. Her unique voice takes you through triumph, bullying, mental depression, empowerment, love and heartbreak with an ease and maturity that is beyond her years.

Her genre can be classified as pop with a hint of jazz that sways her audience to sing along and dance, both at the same time.

THE BEGINNING

Her music journey started off with a life changing experience. In 2014, Jessie J heard Esther performing and filmed the entire performance on her phone.

She also invited Esther to sing her original song "Is This Love" at Jessie J's concert that very evening for an audience of over 10,000 people.

A truly inspiring story that hit the headlines and so Esther's fan base started to develop since then.

Esther Eden: Music is my go to place!

One girl whose Eden doesn't stop working. With three singles and one music video out from her debut album, the Dubai-based pop singer, who started her music career after being discovered by internet pop star Jesse, isn't stopping at all. We loved her debut single 'Freak' which she performed for the first time at the RedFest this year, and since then, she has been busy with two more singles, 'In The Lane' and 'Freak'.

What do you think your biggest achievement is so far?
I think it's being able to write songs and perform them. I think it's being able to write songs and perform them. I think it's being able to write songs and perform them.

What do you think your biggest achievement is so far?
I think it's being able to write songs and perform them. I think it's being able to write songs and perform them. I think it's being able to write songs and perform them.

I think it's being able to write songs and perform them. I think it's being able to write songs and perform them. I think it's being able to write songs and perform them.

You've been working very hard over the last year with three singles, one video and some more debut albums. What will you be doing over the next couple of months?

I am performing my album for the first time live on November 21 at the Beats on the Beach show in Abu Dhabi. Following that, I will be working on my next single.

What is your favorite song to perform in the album?

I can't choose a favorite song as each song means something to me.

What's the biggest challenge you had creating the album?

What have you learned from this whole process?

My music used to go on about how I need to write songs and not just sing covers. I never knew I was capable of writing and I knew I was over the line and I had written. In a place like the UK, where the music industry is still very much a lot of money to meet the producers you may connect with and to obtain the sound you may like. So the hardest, when we first started producing my music, I had never expected it to reach where it is today. I first started making it because I wanted to, but after two years in the industry, I've realized that it's not just about the music, it's about the people you meet and the people you work with.

How do you think your music is different from other artists in the industry?

I think it's different because I'm a girl who can write songs and perform them. I think it's different because I'm a girl who can write songs and perform them.

Esther Eden has a clear idea of how she would like things to go backstage at Beats on the Beach, where she will perform on Friday, November 25, before headline slots from Sean Paul and The 5.

"I've already thought about this," says Eden, who will celebrate her 19th birthday a day after the concert. "So, Sean Paul collaborated on one song with Sia [Cheap Thrills]. I was hoping we can do this song together, and I can sing Sia's part."

Really? That night? Full marks for ambition.

"I'm hoping. I haven't asked – but so far I've always had my dreams come true," says the teenager, who was born in India and lived in the UAE.

Indeed she has. Esther Eden is, after all, the overnight star who in 2014 was plucked from a Dubai high school by UK pop star Jessie J to perform alongside her in front of a crowd of 10,000 at RedFestDXB. Soon after, she was signed by Universal music, and returned to RedFest this year to perform in her own right. After all this, one cannot blame Eden for dreaming big.

The latest milestone in a whirlwind few years was the release of her debut album, Solitaire, on Friday – and Beats on the Beach will be the first time she performs much of the material live.

Largely recorded at Abu Dhabi's White Cube studio, the release builds on the success of singles Is This Love and Phoenix, and follows a recent collaboration with UK DJ Shaun Warner Here We Go.

"I'm so excited to be performing these songs for the first time," says Eden.

"I try to be honest in my music. I've written these songs based on my personal experiences, and hopefully people can relate to them. In a region such as the UAE, music is still not done a lot, so all I hope is that this album gets out there and people enjoy it."

"I've just started, but my long-term goal is to go on a world tour. I like making people happy, and I can carry on doing that with my music, that's the best thing."

Esther Eden will perform at Beats on the Beach, at Abu Dhabi's Corniche, on Friday, November 25, doors open 6:30pm
